What's Up

Just what is up at the Library? We've been in our new space for nine months already—things have settled in and the agreement with CCSL to share this space has been quite smooth and a definite plus financially. Even though we have added bookcases (all of which are full), we still have hundreds of books in storage. The scheduled classes continue to fill our calendar, offering you a variety of ways to learn and grow. Our generous volunteers continue to give of their time to complete all the work that it takes to keep the Library functioning—for 48 years.

A garage sale to benefit the Library will be held on Saturday, October 1 at 415 Hanford Glen in Escondido. If you have sellable items for us, want to help, or want to browse, please call Genny (760) 743-3849 for more information. Hours are 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

In light of the increasing number of people who are losing their jobs, we want to begin gathering non-perishable foods to help our community. When you come to the Library for classes, to borrow books, or just to drop by for conversation, please bring a few items for the hungry. This is one of the ways that the Library can fulfill one of its original purposes to serve the greater community.

Remember that we now have a book drop so you can return your library materials after hours. Also, while we're mentioning returning materials, make sure you have the new bar coded library cards. Makes the borrowing process so much more efficient!

 "Autumn asks that we prepare for the future —that we be wise in the ways of garnering and keeping. But it also asks that we learn to let go—to acknowledge the beauty of sparseness."

Other Than This.....

Monday, September 5th, around 6:30 a.m., I awoke from sleep and in awakening bid goodbye to those I'd known only in a current dream. As that life faded, I welcomed the day with the experience of grogginess that comes after one of those not-too-often nights of a very hard, deep sleep. The air this morning smelled of wetness. Listening carefully, straining, I struggled against the former dream world and fog in which I'd awakened. Was it? Could it be? It was—it was there. I could hear it. It was not the imagination of my still struggling mind. A very, very, slight drizzle. Leaden was the light, the air quiet and still. No brightly tuned birds, none of the usual rustling in the brush of the unseen. Fall. Fall had come in the night.

Yesterday it was Summer, and this morning Fall had arrived; stealthily, unexpected, and unannounced. Unlike Christmas morn upon whom so many wait weeks and months to arrive, but none the less as pronounced and conspicuous as though it had been scheduled and planned for in the same meticulous manner. Shafts of sun broke through clouds and the monochromatic sepia toned light shifted to a slightly brighter hue. The clouds were parting, so I thought. Had this unanticipated seasonal Christmas come and gone while I slept away encumbered and unaware? Today was Labor Day. It does mark the 'official' (as my wife is known to announce) beginning of the holiday season. But today, this holiday was not of the man made type we're so fond of. This day, at this time, on this morning, the Earth itself showed to me and all who faired to notice - a new beginning, and another end. And not just the Earth itself; the Sun, and the stars, the entire Universe has conspired to bring forth to you on this day this new beginning.

Summer, with its state fairs, campgrounds, and dusty humid days had passed. The song of Summer had played out. The orchestra is warming up and in it I hear strains of rain, and themes of holidays to come—Halloween, Thanksgiving, Hanukah, and a measure of jackets & scarves. The 'birth', or perhaps better said 'conception' of Fall was happening now in this moment of this day. Pronounced and decreed with a cloud-covered sunrise, a dribble of drizzle, and in its subtlety a Stillness that shouted and literally proclaimed out loudly – “See me”, “I am here”, and “Know me”.

“I am Fall and I bring with me all the promise I bring every year. Revel in My splendor! Soon there'll be short days and brisk wind and cold, clear nights. Orion in the sky. For some, rain and a new season of growth. For others, snow and ice and bitter cold.”

Looking out again the Sun is beginning to advance and perhaps take victory over clouds. The morning breeze has begun to pick up shown by the wavering of a few ragweed in the backyard that somehow survived a Summer of my wife's continual assault. Though I am not fooled by this show of sun and retreat of clouds and rain. Too late for that. Regardless of what the rest of this day brings my friends – it is Fall. Blessings ~ ronananda

P.S. As if to reaffirm just who was in charge, to be reckoned with, overcast retained the upper hand all that day and the off-and-on rains continued throughout until early Tuesday morning. Exquisite!

Volunteer Marjorie

A little over two years ago, Marjorie dropped in at the Library (the old location) after making one of her many donations to the St. Clare's facility. She was interested in learning more about western philosophy, tarot, Bach flower remedies and the spiritual movement in the early 20th century and thought that the Library might be the place to find some information. We are so glad she made that stop—she's been with us ever since!

This busy bee tackles any job that she becomes aware of with skill and determination. She took over the project of selling used books online and has been very successful ($2,500 profit so far!). She is now our treasurer, serves on the Board of Directors as well as the Steering Committee and shares in the managing of the Library as well as buying items for the gift store.

Marjorie has lived in the San Diego area for over 20 years and currently resides in San Marcos. Her college degrees in Art and Geology have come in handy. She can answer questions about those rocks and crystals in the store!. Besides being an excellent cook, Marjorie loves anything “crafty”, especially needlework. Another interest is reading biographies, histories and British mysteries.

Taking the success with the online bookstore as a kickoff, Marjorie is very interested in helping people to develop more fund-raising projects. If you are interested in this endeavor, you can leave a message at the Library for her (760) 745-2724. She spends so much time there, she just might be around if you stop by in person! One workshop she always attends is the Thursday Sedona Method, one that she finds very helpful. Thank you, Marjorie, for all your efforts.

The art is knowing which combination will work for YOU.

John Maher, DC, board certified in integrative medicine and clinical nutrition, has well over 20 years' experience in all natural therapies to bring you relief. For more information: www.newnaturalmedicine.com. (760) 751-2208. Library Donation.

Friendship and Fun through Media

We continue our lively discussions and learning. Last month's presentation about the Holographic Nature of the Universe was very interesting and kicked off lots of discussion, branching off to the state of the world and the economy. It seems as if some "old ways of doing things" are certainly not working! Have we been so "conditioned" that we have difficulty imagining how we can change things for the better? The power of conditioning is mighty and something we will touch on this month. Each month on the third Thursday, join to share what we share and learn! Library Donation. Info: Jan: janieb@cox.net or (760) 579-2466.
